Mayor Noam Bramson Endorses Pete Buttigieg Along with Over 50 Mayors Across the Nation

New Rochelle, NY -- Today, Mayor Noam Bramson joined more than 50 mayors from across the country to proudly endorse Pete Buttigieg for President of the United States. The announcement was made in an op-ed penned for USA Today.

“Mayor Pete is a generational talent, who will bring to the Presidency a perspective, skill set, and temperament that are ideally matched to the challenges and opportunities of our times,” said Bramson.

“Mayors see firsthand the ground-level impact of policy-making on lives and communities, and we’re the best judges of fellow mayors; the widespread admiration Pete has earned among city leaders across the country is a testament to his exceptional abilities.”

Along with this announcement, Pete for America is launching a “Mayors for Pete” program. This program will comprise of a growing network of mayors and former mayors who will actively engage their communities in support of Pete’s White House bid.
